Work-from-Home Policy

Northstar Demo Services | Fictional sample policy | Version 1.0

1. Purpose and Scope

This sample work-from-home policy describes remote-work arrangements for fictional company Northstar Demo Services. It is an educational example, not a real employer policy.

2. Eligibility and Schedule

Eligible employees may work from home up to two days per week with manager approval. Some roles may require more frequent on-site attendance because of operational needs.

Employees must agree on their remote-work days with their manager and record the schedule in the team's shared calendar.

3. Working Hours and Availability

Employees should follow their agreed working hours and remain reachable through approved communication channels during those hours, except during breaks or approved leave.

If an employee expects to be unavailable for more than 30 minutes during core working hours, they should notify their manager or team in advance when practical.

4. Equipment and Information Security

Employees should use company-approved devices and protect confidential information from being seen or accessed by unauthorized people.

Employees must not share passwords or API keys. Lost devices or suspected information exposure should be reported to the designated IT contact promptly.

5. Expenses and Exceptions

This sample policy does not define reimbursement for internet, electricity, or home-office equipment. Employees should consult a separate approved expense policy.

Exceptions to the two-day weekly limit require written approval from the employee's manager.
